INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP ON PROGRAM AND POLICY EVALUATION

Tuesday, 11 February 2003

OPENING SESSION

2:00 – 2:15 pm

1st PANEL

2:15 – 3:45 pm

EVALUATION IN A NEW AGE: GLOBALIZATION, DEMOCRATIC GOVERNANCE, AND POLICY ANALYSIS

The objective of this panel is to raise questions about the relationships between evaluation and democracy, particularly focusing upon whether there must be a theoretical change in evaluation in the face of the new requirements imposed on states by a globalized economy, on one hand, and by the needs of democratic governance, on the other. Many of the themes discussed by political philosophers and political scientists often have not found a place in evaluation research: social justice, collective identities, right to difference, multiculturalism, etc. How can they be included in meaningful ways?

MAKING SENSE OF EVALUATION: BEYOND EFFICIENCY AND EFFICACY TO ETHICS

This panel seeks to raise the implications for evaluation research and policy analysis of present-day developments in which ethics concerns have been reintroduced into public administration practices. It is possible for government-focused evaluation research to address ethics without losing its concern with efficiency in the use of public resources and with efficacy (producing real change in people's lives) in service delivery?
